Language and communication skills can help the student in being independent, delivering of the information to the in charges/ administration, adjusting in diverse environment, smooth and efficient working, team lead, public relations, satisfaction at work, etc. The course is planned accordingly to boost the morale and bring confidence in students, by engaging them in various events/activities with an add-on of laboratory sessions. Information can be communicated nonverbally by using body language or facial expressions. This could entail expressing a point with particular hand or facial motions, as well as by making or not making eye contact, being close to someone, and using other nonverbal clues. In this regard, a one-hour lecture on Nonverbal Communication: Defining Nonverbal Communication was delivered to the M. Sc. students by Dr. P. Boomi, Assistant Professor, Dept. of Bioinformatics on 6 Sep, 2018 in the II M.Sc. classroom.

Imparting communication skills

Date: 17 / 3 / 2021

Resource Person:

Dr. M. NATARAJAN, Assistant Professor, Dept. of English and Foreign Languages

Soft skills are personal attributes that influence how well you can work or interact with others. These skills make it easier to form relationships with people, create trust and dependability, and lead teams. Soft skills include interpersonal (people) skills, communication skills, listening skills, time management, and empathy, among others. They are among the top skills employers seek in the candidates they hire, because soft skills are important for just about every job. In essence, they are essential for your success in the workplace, your company's success and your personal life. The importance of these soft skills is often undervalued, and there is far less training provided for them than hard skills such as coding. Organizations seem to expect people know how to behave on the job and the importance of skills such as taking initiative, communicating effectively and listening, which often is not the case.

2020-2021

Name of the Event: Communication Skill (Online Session)

Date of Event: 5th & 6th April, 2021

Number of Students Participated: 20

A two- day online workshop was organized by the department for MLIS students of the Department of Library and Information Science on 5th & 6th April, 2021, The Resource Person for this training program was N.Suresh Government Law College Tiruchirapalli, of Tamil Nadu.

Participants were introduced to the resource persons by the Host. The session have been provided online (through phone & video call) started with an introduction on the topic and the importance of communication skills in personal and professional life. Participants were explained about the communication method and the process of effective communication, understanding the cycle of communication starting from the sender to the receiver of the message. As communication is key, knowing and understanding the filters and barriers that can hamper one's overall communication is a must. Participants were encouraged to practice active listening as it helps in overall communication skills. Focus was laid on the ways an individual communicates (spoken word, visuals, written word, body language, and social media). Understanding that Communication is not only about spoken words it also deals with visual and vocal.

Students who are proficient in language and communication can make significant progress in a variety of academic areas, such as public relations, team management, self-sufficiency, reporting to higher authorities, workplace adaptation, and job satisfaction. The course is designed to include lab sessions in addition to various events and activities aimed at enhancing students' positive outlook and self-worth. For our message to be effectively understood, we must communicate with confidence. It's not always simple to feel confident in a high-stakes scenario, but confidence may be developed and enhanced with work. Ignorance of diverse communication styles might lead to issues in our personal and professional life. In this regard, a one-hour lecture on Communicating with Confidence was delivered to the M. Sc. students by Dr. V. Dharuman, Assistant Professor, Dept. of Bioelectronics and Biosensors on 22 Nov, 2021 in the II M.Sc. classroom.

PHONETICS AND EFFECTIVE COMMUNICATION

Date: 2 / 2 / 2022

Resource Person:

Dr. M. NATARAJAN, Assistant Professor, Dept. of English and Foreign Languages,

English, the global language or the whites' language has conquered the whole world. English language has connected people across the world. Everyone knows the language, but most of us do not know the way it is pronounced. A neutral accent is acquired by the people. So it has variant forms in different places. To make it globally intelligible a concern must be given to the pronunciation, stress, syllables, intonation etc. The relevance of phonetics comes here. Phonetics describes the way sounds are produced by the speech organs like lips, tongue and lungs, and it relate the sound of a word. The shape of lips and the position of tongue, and the modification of airstream by the larynx and articulatory organs enable the production and articulation of speech sounds. These sounds combine to form language, the means of communication. In communication, both written and spoken, the grammar and rules should be followed for an effective result. In spoken form, phonetics put forward the rules of pronunciation. It says how the speech organs should be while uttering each sound which results in correct pronunciation and good communication.

Language Training Programme

On March 21st, 2022 the Department of Special Education and Rehabilitation Science organized a Hindi Language Training Programme for its students in the seminar hall. The event aimed to enhance the linguistic skills of the department's students and promote a multilingual learning environment. The program commenced with a warm welcome address by Dr. J

Sujathamalini, setting the tone for an enriching linguistic experience. Dr. J Sujathamalini, in her welcoming address, expressed the importance of language diversity and the role it plays in inclusive education. She emphasized the significance of Hindi language proficiency in the field of special education and rehabilitation science.

Dr. Sujathamalini encouraged the students to actively participate in the training programme, highlighting its potential benefits for their future careers. Mr. Tarak Halder, Teaching Assistant, served as the resource person for the Hindi Language Training Programme. Mr. Halder brought expertise and enthusiasm to the session, making the learning experience engaging and interactive. Through a series of activities, discussions, and practical exercises, he aimed to familiarize the students with the Hindi language and its relevance in their professional journeys. The training programme included various modules covering basic grammar, vocabulary, and conversational skills in Hindi. Interactive sessions allowed students to practice their language skills in a supportive environment. The program also incorporated real-life scenarios related to special education and rehabilitation, enabling students to apply their language skills in practical situations. Mr. G Ravichandran expressed gratitude on behalf of the department for the successful completion of the Hindi Language Training Programme. He acknowledged the efforts of Dr. J Sujathamalini for her initiative in organizing the event and thanked Mr. Tarak Halder for his valuable contributions as

5.1.3 Capacity building and skills enhancement initiatives taken by the institution:

1. Name of the Activity/Event: Language and communication skills

2. Resource Person: Dr. Ramasamy Paulmurugan

3. Activity/Event Duration :14.09.2022

4. Total number of Participatants: 35

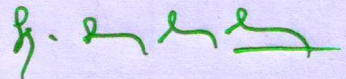

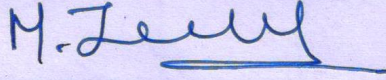

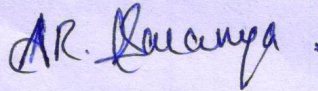

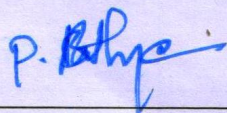

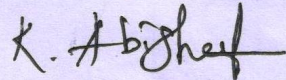

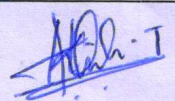

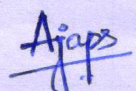

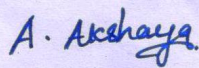

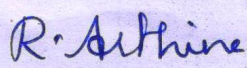

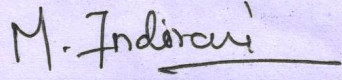

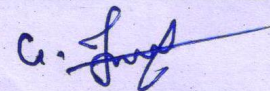

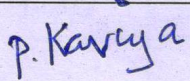

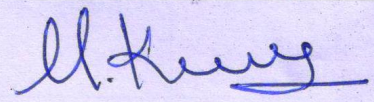

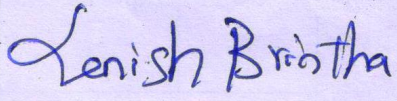

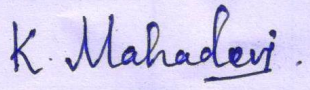

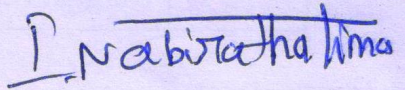

5. Brief Summary of the Activity:

This Special Session Language and communication skills program was organized by Department of Biomedical Science. The best communicators listen actively, inspire people, help them to take effective action, and remove obstacles to their understanding. Communication skills refer to their abilities to give and receive information effectively. A language is a necessity for all human beings as it allows us to interact and exchange our ideas with others. Since ancient times, humans have developed different languages so that it allows them to communicate with others. Mainly there are four skills that one should master when speaking of language skills. They are, Listening, Speaking, Reading, Writing.

Listening skill is considered as the most basic skill and usually, in language education, the student is first given listening activities so that he becomes familiar with the new language. It is only after this that the instructor would move on to the rest. Writing is the final skill that the student has to master. This is considered as a more complex skill. Once the student is competent in all these, he can communicate effectively because he is fully proficient in a language.

Language and communication-proficient students can advance significantly in many academic domains, including public relations, team leadership, self-sufficiency, reporting to superiors, employment flexibility, and job satisfaction. In addition to lab sessions, the course is structured to incorporate a variety of events and activities that are intended to improve students' confidence and self-worth. Since breaking negative news can be unpleasant, people frequently choose to ignore it or misrepresent it in a way that minimizes its impact. On the other hand, for organizational learning and performance enhancement, it can be crucial to provide and receive timely and accurate negative information. In this regard, a one-hour lecture on Straight Talk on Bad Language was delivered to the M. Sc. students by Dr. J. Wilson, Assistant Professor, Dept. of Bioelectronics and Biosensors on 21 Sep, 2022 in the II M.Sc. classroom.

COMMUNICATION SKILLS – 2022-23

The Department of English and Foreign Languages conducted a special lecture programme on 20.01.2023 communication skills by inviting Dr. G. Somasundaram from Alagappa Government Arts College, Karaikudi. It is important for students to remain strong in both subject knowledge and communication skills. The fact, that though students are in possession of sound knowledge about their subjects, if they lag behind in communication skills they may not excel well in their career, has been taken into account while organizing programmes like this. Dr. G. Somasundaram taught all the four skills – Listening, speaking, reading and writing which constitute communication skills and which are essential to students' success. He motivated the students to read English newspapers, novels and short-stories, to watch English news and good English movies and to practice by speaking in English with their friends. He also motivated them to participate in seminars and conferences and present papers which he said would do a world of good to them. He made a power-point presentation on the enrichment of all four skills and it greatly enthused and benefitted students. It was an interaction based communication development programme rather than a monotonous lecture.

LANGUAGE AND COMMUNICATION SKILLS REPORT (2022-2023)

TECHNIQUES FOR PERSUASIVE COMMUNICATION

The Language and Communication Skills Lecture on "Techniques for Persuasive Communication" for our PG students on 13.02.2023, organized by the Department of Mathematics, Alagappa University, was an excellent occasion guided by Dr. M. Natarajan, Assistant Professor, Department of English and Foreign Languages, Alagappa University. His significant communication knowledge produced a dynamic curriculum aimed at boosting participants in both their professional and personal lives.

This program was meant to improve the language in English and communication skills. It offered engaging lessons, specialized activities, and in-depth talks to improve writing and speaking. Participants participated in language drills, group discussions, and practical activities in writing, public speaking, and interpersonal communication. Practical activities allowed participants to apply taught skills, improving their communication skills.

Enhance effective communication skills

Date: 6 / 3 / 2023

Resource Person:

Dr. M. NATARAJAN, Assistant Professor, Dept. of English and Foreign Language

Being able to communicate effectively is one of the most important life skills to learn. Communication itself is defined as transferring information to produce greater understanding. It can be done vocally (through verbal exchanges), through written media (books, websites, and magazines), visually (using graphs, charts, and maps), or non-verbally (body language, gestures, pitch of voice; and tone). All of these means of communication skills are essential Soft Skills that are vital for a successful Career. Having strong communication skills aids in all aspects of life – from professional life to personal life and everything that falls in between. From a business standpoint, all transactions result from communication. Good communication skills are essential to allow others and yourself to understand information more accurately and quickly.
